Brand & Reputation Management Proposal

Toyota of Vero Beach & Kia of Vero Beach

Prepared for Jared Saunders, Owner Operator · Prepared by Leo Lebel, Circuit Coders · Date June 12, 2026

Executive Summary

Toyota of Vero Beach and Kia of Vero Beach are healthy businesses with an abandoned brand surface. Across both stores you've earned roughly 8,700 Google reviews at 4.5+ stars — and that earned reputation is leaking away through broken listings, unanswered complaints, fragmented profiles, and unmanaged platforms that no one is watching.

This proposal does not touch your advertising. Your paid media program stays exactly where it is. This is the layer advertising can't buy: the reputation, listings, and local-search presence that every shopper checks after an ad gets their attention — and that decides whether your ad dollars convert or bounce.

Every finding below was independently verified on June 12, 2026. The program: a two-week Get-Well Sprint that permanently fixes what's broken, then ongoing brand management of both rooftops for $2,950/month, month-to-month.

1 What We Found: The Technical Audit

1. Your Toyota homepage heading says "Visit DealerOn Toyota"

The main heading (H1) on verobeachtoyota.com — the most important on-page signal Google reads — currently says "Visit DealerOn Toyota in Vero Beach, FL." DealerOn is your website vendor. Their template placeholder was never replaced with your dealership's name. Google and every visitor have been shown the wrong business name, and nobody noticed.

2. Identity fragmentation across the web

- Multiple phone numbers in circulation per store — five for Toyota and at least four for Kia across your own sites, Toyota.com's official locator, Yelp, Cars.com, and DealerRater. Google cross-references name/address/phone everywhere they appear; inconsistency at this scale suppresses the map-pack rankings that drive service appointments.
- Kia staff emails are published on toyotaofvero.com — a dead domain that won't load.
- verobeachkia.com — the most natural way a customer types the Kia store's name — serves a "Website Expired" error page.
- DealerRater lists Kia of Vero Beach at the Toyota store's address.
- An unclaimed Birdeye profile lists the dealership in "Florida Ridge, MO" — the wrong city and state.

3. No defense of your home market

You are the only Toyota dealer in Vero Beach — a genuine geographic moat. Meanwhile, Bev Smith Toyota (Fort Pierce) operates four dedicated, indexed "Toyota dealer near me" landing pages engineered to capture buyers from your side of the county line. Your sites have zero pages defending Vero Beach, Sebastian, or Indian River County searches.

4. Zero content presence

The Toyota blog is a dead link (it redirects to the About page). Between two rooftops, a service operation customers have favorited 23,000+ times on CARFAX, and 8,700+ reviews, you sit on more answerable customer-question material than nearly any business in the county — and none of it exists on your sites. Those searches currently resolve to Bev Smith, Melbourne dealers, and forums.

What's working (and stays): both DealerOn websites are Toyota/Kia-certified and structurally sound — we are not proposing a website replacement — and your advertising program continues untouched. Google review volume and ratings are excellent raw material. The problem is everything around them.

2 Reputation: Each Store on Its Own

We audited each rooftop's reputation separately, platform by platform. The pattern is identical at both stores: strong where reviews accumulate on their own (Google), weak-to-broken everywhere that requires active management.

Toyota of Vero Beach

PLATFORM	RATING	REVIEWS	STATUS
Google	~4.5	~5,718	Strong — your best asset
CARFAX	4.4	~2,490	Strong volume (77% five-star)
DealerRater	4.0	434	Middling, unmanaged
Facebook	~3.9	~143	Unmanaged
Cars.com	mixed	656	Unmanaged
Yelp	—	fragmented	Split across 3 listings, incl. a still-live legacy "Toyota Kia of Vero Beach" page
BBB	F	20 complaints / 3 yrs	Not accredited · only 5 of 20 complaints resolved · active licensing alert

The complaint pattern that matters: across BBB, DealerRater, CARFAX, and Cars.com, the recurring themes are finance-office disputes (financing terms changed after agreement, add-on products, slow warranty/GAP refunds) and service-pricing surprises (phone quote vs. counter price). Individual salespeople and advisors are consistently praised by name — the people are liked; the processes generate the complaints, and nobody is responding to any of it.

On the BBB licensing alert: the profile cites a "competency license" issue. You hold an active Florida dealer license (MV4029, valid through 9/2027) — this appears to be a BBB records gap, but it has sat on your profile unchallenged. It is fixable, and it should be fixed this month.

Kia of Vero Beach

PLATFORM	RATING	REVIEWS	STATUS
Google	4.6	~2,977	Strong — your best asset
KBB	4.6–4.7	—	Strong
Cars.com	~4	271	Decent, unmanaged
DealerRater	3.8	179	Listed at the Toyota store's address
Birdeye (service)	4.0	25	Unclaimed — you cannot respond
Yelp	2.5	52	Your worst public surface
CARFAX	no rating	0	Empty profile despite a "Lifetime Dealer" badge

PLATFORM	RATING	REVIEWS	STATUS
Facebook	hidden	2 pages	Two competing pages splitting your audience
BBB	B+ (own profile)	16 complaints	Not accredited — and "Kia of Vero Beach" is also named on the F-rated Toyota profile, so BBB searches for the Kia store can surface the F

The complaint pattern that matters: the same two stories repeat across Yelp, Cars.com, and Google — advertised price vs. required add-on packages at signing, and a service-department alignment recommendation at low mileage that customers report second opinions contradicting. Whether or not these reflect policy, they are the dominant negative narrative on every platform where nobody from the store responds — and right now, nobody responds anywhere.

What this section tells you: your stores' reputations are not bad — they're abandoned. The high-volume platforms carry you; the managed platforms (where a response, a claim, or a corrected address is all it takes) are where the damage concentrates. Every item in both tables is addressable: claim, correct, consolidate, respond, and put a system behind review generation so the strong platforms keep compounding.

3 What This Costs You

BROKEN ASSET	BUSINESS IMPACT
BBB F + licensing alert on brand search	Trust collapse at the highest-intent moment: the pre-signing Google search
2.5★ Yelp (Kia), unanswered complaints everywhere	The negative narrative is the only voice speaking
NAP fragmentation, wrong addresses, dead domains	Suppressed map-pack rankings → lost service bookings and walk-ins
No local landing pages	Vero Beach and Sebastian buyers leak to Fort Pierce and Melbourne daily
Empty CARFAX (Kia), fragmented Yelp, duplicate Facebook	Earned reputation evaporating on platforms shoppers actually check
Placeholder H1, dead blog	Weakened relevance on your most important page; zero capture of research-stage shoppers

This is also where your advertising ROI quietly dies. Every ad impression you pay for sends a shopper toward these surfaces — the brand search, the map pack, the review profiles. When those surfaces leak trust, the ad budget pays full price for clicks that don't convert. Brand management is how you protect the spend you're already committed to.

4 The Get-Well Plan

Phase 0 — The Sprint (Weeks 1–2) · one-time $2,500

1. Correct the Toyota homepage H1; audit every heading/meta on both sites (via your DealerOn dashboard — no site migration; DealerOn's turnaround applies to changes that require their support).
2. BBB triage, both identities: draft and file responses to all open complaints (with your team's input on the facts of each case), open the rating-remediation path, resolve the licensing-record gap, and begin separating the Kia store's BBB identity from the F-rated entity profile. To be straight with you: BBB rating recovery is a months-long process — we manage it and report on it monthly, but the BBB controls its own clock.
3. Domain cleanup: verify ownership of toyotaofvero.com and verobeachkia.com; redirect or retire what you control, and pursue recovery of anything registered outside the dealership. Correct every staff-email reference either way.
4. One canonical phone scheme per store, corrected everywhere we can claim or edit — including the Kia wrong-address DealerRater listing. (Toyota.com locator data is updated through your Toyota dealer portal; we prepare the correction, your team submits it.)
5. Claim what's unclaimed: both Birdeye profiles (fixing the "Missouri" address), file the merge of the duplicate Kia Facebook pages, file removal of the legacy "Toyota Kia" Yelp listing.
6. Baseline report: rankings, Google Business Profile insights, review velocity for both rooftops — every later claim of progress is measured against day zero.

Deliverable, stated honestly: everything within our direct control is completed within 14 days of access being in place. Every item that depends on a third party's process — BBB, Facebook, Yelp, DealerOn, domain registrars — is filed within those 14 days and tracked weekly until closed, with status in every monthly report.

Phase 1 — Foundations (Days 15–45)

- Full citation cleanup across both rooftops (50+ directories and data aggregators).
- Google Business Profile takeover, both stores: services, categories, photos, Q&A seeding, weekly posts.

- Review response system, every platform: all new reviews answered within 24 hours — including negative ones, which is where shoppers actually look. Backlog of unanswered negatives addressed with a consistent, non-defensive voice.
- Review generation engine: post-sale and post-service prompts with store routing — pointed at the platforms that need volume: Kia's empty CARFAX and weak Yelp. We build and run the system; the one thing we need from your floor is a 10-second step at delivery and service pickup (a card or text with the right link), and we'll train your team on it.

Phase 2 — Offense (Days 45–90)

- Defensive local pages: Vero Beach, Sebastian, Indian River County × sales/service/parts intent — the wall against Bev Smith's near-me strategy.
- Content engine launch: 4 pieces/month answering the questions your customers already ask, each targeted at searches currently resolving to competitors.

Ongoing (Month 4+)

Monthly cadence per rooftop: Google Business Profile posts and full review management · 2+ local/content pages · rank, GBP, and review-velocity reporting · quarterly competitive audit (we watch Bev Smith and the Melbourne dealers so you don't have to).

5 Reporting: You See Everything

Every month, one report per rooftop, in plain English:

- Local rankings for the keywords that matter, tracked from Vero Beach, Sebastian, and Fort Pierce
- Google Business Profile performance: calls, direction requests, website clicks
- Review velocity and rating trend, platform by platform — including Yelp and CARFAX recovery at the Kia store
- BBB status, both profiles, until the F is gone

And because your ad program continues separately, these reports give you something you've never had: an independent read on whether the traffic your ads buy is landing on a brand that converts.

6 Investment

One-time Get-Well Sprint: $2,500 — Weeks 1–2, Phase 0 scope

Brand Management Program: $2,950/month — both rooftops, everything in this document

Month-to-month, 30-day notice. That term is the guarantee: if the monthly reports don't show progress, you leave. We keep the account by performing, not by contract.

Payment terms

- Sprint ($2,500): invoiced at kickoff (the access call), due before work begins. Paid by card or ACH via Stripe invoice.
- Monthly program ($2,950): begins at the Day-14 Sprint review. Billed as an automatic monthly subscription via Stripe; first charge on program start, then the same date each month.
- No setup fees beyond the Sprint, no annual commitment, no early-termination charges — 30 days' written notice ends the program.

Program timelines begin once the access checklist in Part 7 is complete. Items that run on third-party clocks (BBB, Facebook, Yelp, DealerOn, registrars) are filed immediately and tracked to completion — we commit to the filing and the follow-through, not to other companies' processing times.

One promise we will never make: a specific ranking, rating, or review score. Google, the BBB, and Yelp don't sell those outcomes, so no honest vendor can guarantee them — and any vendor who does is telling you something about themselves. We guarantee the work, the filings, the follow-through, and complete visibility into all three.

7 What We Need From You

Brand management is access-dependent — we can't respond to a review or fix a listing on a profile we can't log into. The Sprint clock starts when the access checklist is complete, and we'll walk your team through every item on a single call (most are "add a manager" invitations, not password hand-offs):

ACCESS	WHAT IT UNLOCKS
Google Business Profile — manager invite, both stores	GBP management, posts, review responses, insights
BBB business account (or authorization to create one)	Complaint responses, both profiles, identity separation
Yelp for Business, DealerRater, Cars.com, CARFAX dealer portals	Review responses, listing corrections, duplicate removal
Facebook — admin on all dealership pages	Page merge, review management, posting
DealerOn dashboard access (or an introduction to your rep)	H1/meta fixes, local pages, content publishing
Domain registrar details for toyotaofvero.com / verobeachkia.com	Redirects and dead-domain cleanup
A named staff contact (one person, both stores)	Facts for BBB complaint responses; the 10-second review-ask step at delivery and service pickup

Anything on this list that doesn't exist yet (an unclaimed profile, a missing business account), we create under the dealership's ownership — never ours. You own every account, login, and listing on day one and on the day we part ways.

8 The Cleanup Timeline — Milestone by Milestone

Day 0 is the access call. Every duration below is researched against each platform's actual published process or documented real-world turnaround — not guesses. Two clocks run in parallel: our clock (work we do) and their clock (platform review queues we file into and chase).

Days 0–1 • Kickoff & access

MILESTONE	DURATION	WHOSE CLOCK
Access call: GBP manager invites (both stores), portal logins, staff contact named	1 hour call; GBP invites take effect immediately	Ours

Domain ownership verification (toyotaofvero.com, verobeachkia.com)	Same day	Ours

Google applies a 7-day restriction on sensitive actions for brand-new managers (ownership transfers, profile deletion) — none of which we need for this work, so it doesn't slow anything down.

Days 1–3 · Immediate wins

MILESTONE	DURATION	WHOSE CLOCK
DealerRater wrong-address fix (Kia)	Self-serve in the Dealer Panel — immediate	Ours
GBP edits live: services, descriptions, hours, phones, both stores	Minutes–72 hours (Google review)	Mostly ours
Baseline report delivered: rankings, GBP insights, review velocity, day-zero snapshot	By Day 3	Ours
BBB complaint-response drafting begins with your staff contact (36 complaints across both profiles)	Starts Day 1	Ours + your team

Days 3–7 · Everything filed

MILESTONE	DURATION	WHOSE CLOCK
DealerOn ticket: Toyota homepage H1 + full heading/meta corrections	Filed Day 3; DealerOn typically turns routine edits in days, up to 1–2 weeks (no public SLA — we chase)	Theirs
BBB responses filed, both profiles; licensing-record correction submitted with MV4029 documentation	Responses post ~2 business days after BBB review; record correction days–a few weeks	Theirs
Birdeye profiles claimed, Missouri address corrected	Days	Mostly ours
Facebook: duplicate Kia pages renamed to match (the step that prevents merge denial), merge filed	Merge processes in <1 day–72 hrs when eligible; up to 2 weeks if flagged	Theirs
Yelp: legacy "Toyota Kia" duplicate-listing removal filed with evidence	Several days–2 weeks (we follow up after 5–7 business days)	Theirs

MILESTONE	DURATION	WHOSE CLOCK
CARFAX dealer account signup (activates Kia's empty review profile)	~1 week, up to 2	Theirs
Apple Business Connect: both stores verified and corrected	Up to 5 days first-time	Theirs
Domains you control: redirects live; staff-email references corrected	Same day as registrar access	Ours

Days 7–14 · Sprint close-out

MILESTONE	DURATION	WHOSE CLOCK
All Sprint items in our control: done	By Day 14	Ours
Citation cleanup submitted to the data aggregators (Data Axle, Foursquare, Localeze) + top directories	Submitted by Day 14; aggregator ingestion runs 6–8 weeks	Theirs
Toyota.com locator phone correction prepared and routed through your Dealer Daily portal / district rep	Prepared by Day 14; Toyota corporate timing is not publicly documented — budget weeks	Theirs (Toyota corporate)
Day-14 Sprint review: everything done vs. baseline, plus a live tracker of every item still in a platform queue	Day 14	—

Weeks 3–12 · The long tail (tracked in every monthly report)

MILESTONE	EXPECTED WINDOW	NOTES
Facebook merge + Yelp duplicate removal confirmed closed	Weeks 2–4	If Meta denies the merge, we rename-and-refile — denials are common and have no appeal, so we file it right the first time
BBB grade recovery begins	Weeks 2–8 and ongoing	BBB recalculates continuously; answered complaints stop dragging the grade immediately, but complaints age off only after 3 years — this is a curve, not a switch
Aggregator data propagated across directories, GPS apps, and the long tail of the web	6 weeks–6 months	The honest long pole of every NAP cleanup — batch cycles we cannot accelerate, which is why it's filed in week 1, not week 6

verobeachkia.com recovery, if third-party-owned	Purchase inquiry 2–6 weeks typical	Decision point with you before any money is offered

What could slow us down, stated up front: Facebook merge denials (mitigated by renaming pages first), GBP edits flagged for extended review (2–4 weeks worst case — we escalate at day 7), DealerOn's lack of a published SLA, and Toyota corporate's undocumented locator pipeline. Every one of these appears in your monthly report with its filing date and current status until it closes — nothing silently disappears.
